BARBARA PECORA

Born in 1972, Barbara Pecora's artworks are a solid statement of the contemporary culture of the world. Staging her interest in several noted personalities of music, art and literature, her works are an energetic combination of text, visuals and random motifs. They often highlight cuss words as a denotation of her angst, which in reality is on behalf of the generation that feels likewise. Barbara works with mixed media, focusing majorly on the texts to convey the concept. Barbara is a noted international artist, whose fame arose due to her flamboyant imagery as well as rebellious attitude. Collected by international institutions and critically acclaimed by many, her paintings become a harbour of subconscious messages which are latent. Moreover, her paintings augment every individual and especially a political leader on the road of evocative thoughts. They resonate with an existential crisis of not only a national individual but of the pathos of worldly concerns. More importantly, she presents herself in a guise appearance.
